

As part of a project, second grade students researched which local organizations needed assistance in the Macon area. Student, Emily Slavin submitted a nomination for the class to hold a canned-food drive to assist the Macon Rescue Mission. Enlisting the help of ALL Porter students, the school set a goal of collecting 1,000 items to give to the Rescue Mission by Thursday, November 17th. When the final total came in--- Porter students had donated 1,542 cans--far exceeding their goal! The REACH class is planning on doing other community service projects this year as they continue studying poverty and abundance.
